

Advancing Inter-Professional Practice

Promoting effective inter-professional collaboration in the delivery of health care in Canada has become a national priority based on evidence that it may contribute to improved teamwork and collaboration, increased job satisfaction, and a reduction in patient morbidity. The Hospital for Sick Children will be showcasing a full week of inter-professional practice events from November 12-16 that profile inter-professional collaborative practices relating to:

- Teamwork
- Inter-professional pilot projects & research
- Best practices

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Ivy Felicidad Oandasan MD MHScc CCFP FCFP

Ivy Oandasan is an Associate Professor and Research Scholar with the Department of Family and Community Medicine at the University of Toronto. She was the project lead for the Literature Review and Environmental Scan for Health Canada's Interprofessional Education for Collaborative Patient Centred Practice Initiative in 2004 and a literature review on Effective Teamwork for the Canadian Health Sciences Research Foundation in 2005. She has conducted a number of educational research projects related to the development of Interprofessional Education curricula and faculty development. Currently Dr. Oandasan is a Principal Investigator on the Health Canada 'Structuring Communication Relationships for Inter-Professional Teamwork to Achieve Inter-Professional Education for Collaborative Patient Centred Practice' (S.C.R.I.P.T.) Programme at the University of Toronto.

In January of 2006 she was named Director of the Office of Interprofessional Education at the University of Toronto, the first of its kind at the University. In the last year she was instrumental in garnering over $4 million of funding to build a foundation for Interprofessional Education at the University of Toronto and the Toronto Academic Health Sciences Network.

In October 2007 she was named the provincial co-lead for the HealthForceOntario Strategy's Interprofessional Care Project – advancing a Blueprint for Action for Interprofessional Care.

Dr. Oandasan speaks widely on Interprofessional Education and Collaborative Patient Centred Practice across Canada. She grounds her knowledge and practice of this area through her work as a clinician, educator, researcher and administrator.

Lorelei Lingard PhD

Lorelei Lingard is Associate Professor in the Department of Paediatrics, University of Toronto. She is a scientist in the Wilson Centre for Research in Education at UHN, and in the SickKids Research Institute. In August 2007, she joined the SickKids Learning Institute as lead educational researcher, developing a research program to explore the nature and impact of interprofessional collaboration and education in paediatric care. Dr. Lingard is the inaugural holder of the BMO Financial Group Professorship in Health Professions Education Research at the University Health Network.

Dr. Lingard received her PhD in Rhetoric from Simon Fraser University in 1998. Her research program has used predominantly qualitative methods to investigate the nature of communication among professionals working together on healthcare teams in a variety of inpatient settings. She has a particular interest in how communication patterns influence novice socialization and patient safety. Her collaborative research team includes PhD and Masters students from rhetoric and education, as well as clinical collaborators from a variety of healthcare disciplines. Lorelei has been the recipient of numerous awards for her research, including a Canadian Institutes of Health Research New Investigator award (2003-2008).
